Date of survey: Records were collected from January to July 2025

Surveyor(s): Vitaliy Hedz, Yuliia Kravets, Liubov Zinchenko

Owner of Collection: Archival Department of the Bucha District State Administration

Collection Dates: 1932–2023

Signed Grant of Permission (Agreement to Digitize and make content openly accessible): Yes

Collection Summary:

The Makariv Archive, originating from the Makariv district (presently part of the Bucha region), comprises over 43,000 storage units spanning 1932–2023 and encompassing 151 archival sub-collections, of which 39,780 files are of permanent preservation and 385 pertain to personnel records. During the Soviet era, Makariv was the largest district in Kyiv Oblast, and the Makariv Archive stood as one of the most extensive archival collections in the region, particularly relating to the Soviet period. The oldest document in the archive is the report of the kolkhoz (agricultural cooperative) Volia from the village of Mariianivka, Brusyliv District (later Byshiv and Makariv Districts), Kyiv Oblast, covering 1932–1933. The archive holds documents of the National Archival Fund of Ukraine, as well as a small number of personal records from certain institutions and enterprises for the years 1943–1946, and materials from territorial election commissions relating to local council elections and the election of village and settlement heads in the district.

Of exceptional historical significance, the archive contains rare and unique documents offering insights into the history of Soviet modernity from the perspective of the rural periphery. This includes records of local Soviet authorities and enterprises from the 1940s to the 1990s, photographs capturing Bucha during the Soviet era, local newspapers from 1945–2020, reports from Soviet kolkhozes during Stalin’s collectivization and the post-war period, and documents relating to World War II under Nazi occupation. The collection also preserves local anti-religious propaganda, documentation on the Chernobyl catastrophe, and materials on Ukraine’s declaration of independence.

Finally, the archive houses the collection “Russian Aggression during the Occupation in Bucha,” the first and unparalleled compilation of documents relating to the 2022 occupation and massacre in Bucha, including photographs, videos, articles, and recorded eyewitness testimonies (this collection is currently being catalogued and processed).

Give a brief account of the types of materials included and the topics covered. Include the importance and uniqueness of the collection.

Restrictions to Collection or Sensitive Material:

Restrictions apply to personal records, which may only be made public 75 years after their creation.

Note any restrictions in place or sensitive material identified by the donor or during the survey (e.g., Social Security numbers, student records, etc.).

Note size of collection and explain any unusual circumstances.

Accessibility

Consider additional needs for making materials accessible online? Will this collection require any of the following? Note where these processes would add meaning but may not be required.

<input type="checkbox"/> OCR	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Color or other correction
<input type="checkbox"/> Translation

Notes:

Supply needs:

Add notes on all supplies needed to digitize this collection. Are there preservation needs first? Will your team need a camera and lights or a slide scanner? Review the UCLA Library Toolkit for a recommendation.

- Copystand
- Tripod
- Color Checker
- Memory cards
- Dust removal tool
- Lighting

Additional Notes:

Highlight things about the collection that make it difficult to use or understand in its current state.

The archive has been affected by war-related disruptions, including emergency relocations, severe resource constraints, and damage to infrastructure, all of which have slowed preservation, processing, and digitization efforts. As a result, fragile materials are at increased risk of deterioration, while power blackouts further limit both preservation activities and remote access.
